

Steps to Partnership is a framework for supporting and enhancing an authentic culture of student engagement and decision-making in Irish higher education. This framework is for all students and staff. It recognises that higher education is a learning community, where students are partners, not consumers.

Steps to Partnership sets out three key concepts as follows:

is the act of students sharing their individual and collective lived experiences within the learning community, expressed through views and perspectives, demonstrated by formal and informal conversation, debate, feedback, and ultimately, active listening and being heard.

Student engagement is a process by which students and staff seek to work together to shape decision-making in higher education, building individual and collective capacity and knowledge to navigate institutional structures and cultures.

Student partnership is the practice that both drives forward and emerges from meaningful student engagement, which recognises the need to re-balance power dynamics in higher education and seeks to enable a culture of change through collaboration, reciprocity and shared responsibility between staff and students.

The framework has four key elements: the four drivers of student engagement, the four domains of student engagement, the five principles of student engagement, and the five enablers of student engagement. These elements can be remembered as 4-4-5-5.
